VOLUNTEERS-OR-ELSE PRINCIPLE

It is apparent from the presentation of the case for national service legislation by Secretaries Stimson, Knox and Adm. Land that their immediate objective is some means of handling acute labor shortages in specific industries and areas. The full text of their statement shows that they are not interested in the general application of the law.

"It is our thought," they say, "that the war work service act should first provide for the recruiting of voluntary workers before the selective service principle is invoked. When a given war industry, in a given locality, is found suffering from a labor shortage, that fact should be proclaimed in a call for volunteers to fill the shortage. Emphatically, the law must prevent depletion in the ranks of other essential industries to man the one in distress, because one of the greatest of present difficulties is the excessive turnover in employment. . . . In case sufficient volunteers do not appear in answer to the call, then the national selective service principle must be invoked to supply the essential need."

Concluding the statement, the three officials say: "From the experience of our allies it can be predicted that once the obligation to serve is made a duty by law the volunteers will come forward." They do not explain, however, how the alternative to volunteer service would work, and that is the weakness of all presentations of the case for national service. The proponents are in the unconvincing attitude of promoting a law they say they hope they wouldn't use, but they do not explain what would happen if they were disappointed.

PARTY GOVERNMENT

The lip service which is given to the two-party system of government means something when steps are taken to make it work better.

Sen. Taft, chairman of the senate's Republican steering committee, who recently described a plan being considered by the committee to revise and modernize the senate committee system, has announced another important detail of his organization's operation.

The senate minority will retain a professional historian, George E. E. Smith, to act as research consultant. It will be his function to coordinate the proposals of the minority's senate members, to assure continuity of direction and purpose in legislation on foreign policy, administrative reorganization, taxes, post-war communications and related subjects.

The idea is not new. It has appeared in every recent proposal to improve legislative efficiency and had been sanctioned by the senate, though no appointment was made. Congressmen, confronted with a horde of administrative specialists, long have been aware of their own need for more guidance in specialized fields. Unless legislators have easy access to experts in taxation, for instance, they are at a disadvantage in handling treasury department recommendations. Their public hearings, while they furnish opinions and give spokesmen for many viewpoints a chance to be heard, do not furnish the continuing guidance.

The two-party system will survive according to its ability to do the job. The job will be done better if Republicans in the senate follow through on their drive to increase their efficiency.

EAST-WEST INVASION

Invasion suspense is tightened in Germany and will be tightened in the United States and Great Britain, also, when more is known of Russian preparations for the opening of a summer offensive, presumably timed to coincide with the cross-channel attack from England. German reports now mention information of massive groupings of Russian forces in the area east of Awow, where the Russians have driven their salient into Poland. The German press and radio are preparing the people for simultaneous offensives; it is no longer the Russian offensive in the Balkans that is feared, but the coming Russian offensive through Poland, threatening Germany from the east at the same moment that the massive operations from England threaten it from the west.

LEND-LEASE FOOTNOTE

In the spring a young man's fancy in America used to turn to thoughts of taking his best girl for a ride. But now most of the young men are in the fighting forces—and their best girls are waiting for them back home.

They are gone, but not forgotten. And they haven't changed, at least as far as the driving is concerned. In Britain alone, some 1,000 damage claims are filed each week against American "cowboy" drivers. The situation is so bad that from now on it is going to be handled by lend-lease. Britain will pay for damage done by American soldiers; the United States will meet claims in this country for damage done by British subjects. For once, no one will dare to say that America was out-bargained. One of those "cowboys" in a jeep is the equal of any 10 Britons in a fender-smashing contest.

WATER PINCERS

Opening of an Allied naval campaign in the Indian ocean suggests one immediate, one long-range objective. The immediate objective is to cut Japan's naval supply line past Singapore and through the Straits of Malacca to Burma. The long-range objective is to clear the way from the Indian ocean past Singapore to the South China sea, and there to effect naval junction with the U. S. forces driving eastward through the Truk Islands to the Philippines.

It is only the beginning of a pattern of grand strategy, but if the Allies have not overestimated Japanese shipping losses it may be followed up with more alacrity than would have seemed possible a year ago. The ultimate aim must be to clear the sons of Japanese naval power throughout the whole vast area of the Netherlands East Indies, to capture the Philippines and establish military bases in South China—a campaign of such magnitude that it is almost beyond comprehension. But again, it is helpful to remember that a year ago even such a beginning as has been made was almost beyond comprehension.

THE STARS SAY:

For Wednesday, April 26

ALTHOUGH CLEVER and enterprising efforts may be under highly stimulating auspices on this day, yet all may not be "plain sailing." There is a sign of stubborn obstacles, delays and limiting, depressing or thwarting factors to cope with, but nothing which may not be surmounted or walked around. Perseverance, application and patience are likely to attract the needed assistance and hearty cooperation of those in power. It is probable that personality, prestige and social or sentimental influences may have force. Utilize these but be sure not to force matters and be alert to dubious or suspicious circumstances.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year of opportunity to make definite progress and attain its cherished objectives against some tenacious obstacles, delays, limitations and discouragements. However the energies, faculties and initiative should be well stimulated for success, especially by the intervention of those in financial power or social prestige. Personal appeal as well as sound principles have much weight in winning and holding worthwhile support. Do not hesitate to use such influences but beware of schemes, and doubtful affiliations or projects.

A child born on this day may have ability, sound principles and impressive personality, which should win it the interest of influential persons. It may, however, be subject to treachery or business double-dealing.

TEACHER SHORTAGE

COLUMBUS, April 25.—Dr. Allen D. Patterson, head of the placement bureau of the Ohio State university College of Education, predicts a "tragic situation" for Ohio's school children unless hundreds of teachers can be found before next fall.

So acute has become the teacher shortage in the state, Dr. Patterson said, "the reservoir of available candidates for even emergency certificates is nearly empty."

He said more than 3,000 emergency certificates were issued for the present school year but a survey by the State Department of Education has shown more than 4,000 more teachers will leave their jobs before next September.

A report by Harold J. Bowers, state supervisor of teacher education and certification, showed Ohio already has lost more than 10,000 teachers since Pearl Harbor. That figure represents one-fourth of the total number normally employed.

Another thing we've often noticed is that it is easy to get along with people that agree with you.

Drinking from Cup Is Good For Baby

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
SOME TIME ago in order to evoke comment I published a letter from a lady who referred to "the pernicious practice of teaching tiny babies to take their nourishment from a cup." She quoted Dr. Alexis Carrel as saying that "sucking is necessary for the proper development of the jaws, nose and roof of the mouth." Here is a comment:

Dr. Clendenning will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

"Your column is read with interest every day at our house. This morning's paper really did 'evoke further comment,' at least from me."

"In regard to the statement that infants should not be fed from a cup, I should like to tell you of our experience."

"After a severe fever when my little girl was six months old I was unable to nurse her. An older doctor suggested feedings from a cup. Although rather hard to do at first, she thrived and gained weight."

"We held the child in our laps and turned the cup towards her as you would drink from it yourself. There is a sucking motion and if the child is exceptionally hungry she nearly pulls the cup from your hand."

Advices Cup Drinking

A friend of mine, Dr. G. M. Frizzen, who is the "compliant pediatrician" and qualifies as an authority because he brought his two children up on cup drinking and has a picture of them at the age of six to show how healthy they are, teaches all his students, so he tells me, to train mothers to teach babies to drink out of a cup rather than a nursing bottle.

There are several advantages, the most important being that it teaches them to eat. Thus there is no hiatus at the time when the baby begins to take more or less solid food.

Besides there seems to be a more regular alignment of teeth in the cup drinkers than in the bottle suckers. That some changes are made in the mouth parts from too vigorous sucking is evidenced by another letter received from Toronto:

"I have a little son of three and one half years of age. He has never lost the nursing bubble that appears on the upper lip of babies. He was weaned from the breast at seven months and on a bottle for two months. Will this have to be removed, and if so in what way?" I am assured, again by Dr. Frizzen, that these sucking pads all go away in the course of time although he says he has seen some persist even to the fifth year.

Gets Enough Milk

Contrary to expectations and pre-suppositions the baby who drinks from the cup does not spill most of the meal. He gets all he needs, as is shown by weight gain, practically universally found in cup drinkers.

It is really Nature's method. The baby at the breast does not suck the milk out from the mother. It flows out in response to the stimulus of the baby's lips against the nipple. It is only at the end of the feeding that the baby does any vigorous sucking and this is an instinctive action which stimulates the breast to begin secreting for the next meal.

Along these lines I have another letter:

"I am the grandmother of a 15-day-old baby boy who weighs seven pounds now and seems healthy. The trouble and worry for me is this. The hospital nurse told the mother to always put the baby on his stomach. The baby, of course, lies upside down, his face pressed in the bedding, arms and hands crushed under him."

CHAPTER FORTY-TWO

"I'll try to see you later on," said the columnist. "Will you be here all afternoon?"

"Yes, worse luck!"

"All right, I'll call you."

Tony turned back to his mail. He finished it, took a power, and then, following his usual routine for Sunday afternoon, slipped into his little laboratory, slipped on a white linen coat, and went intently over his microscope.

So he spent an absorbing hour making slides and labeling them, and was just slipping out of his coat when Clarence tapped at the door.

"They're a lady wants to see you," he said. "Says her name is Mrs. Scott."

Tony strode into the study with, "So you! I've been hoping you would come. I need your help."

"I only hope I can help!" and he rose to take his outstretched hand.

The columnist saw that she was more like herself. Her face had a delicate color back and there were no shadows under her eyes. She had regained her self-control. "Sit down," he said. "I'm glad to see you looking so much better than you did yesterday—feeling better, too, evidently."

"Yes, I'm feeling better. I hadn't been able to sleep, but last night I did—after I decided to come to you today. I have been so uncertain about what I ought to do. But I am made up my mind that I want to help you solve this mystery. I want to clear Dr. Metcalf's name, and punish the man who killed him."

Her eyes were shining, her voice husky with emotion.

"But if he murdered McKibben..."

"He didn't."

"You say that as though you were sure?"

"I am sure." She took a rather long pause. "Mr. Bigelow, I am going to tell you something which never thought I would tell anybody. Dr. Metcalf was in love with a woman, and she with him. She had dinner with him Monday night. She was with him long after the hour Mr. McKibben was killed. She is ready to come forward and testify to it, if necessary."

Tony looked at her for a moment in silence. Her eyes were raised to his and he saw that they were a dark brown. He noted the Pan-like lift of her brows, the tilt of her nose, the curve of her lips. He had never seen a more provocative face.... Was it she who had been with Metcalf Monday night?

"You can take my word for it, Mr. Bigelow," Miss Scott added. "What I have just told you is true."

"Dr. Metcalf's boy could verify it, suppose?"

He knows that she had dinner with him, but he would probably deny it unless he thought Dr. Metcalf would want him to speak out."

"He told Duffy that Metcalf was alone Monday night," Tony pointed out. "I thought he was lying when he said it."

"We were very devoted to Dr. Metcalf."

"Perhaps you could persuade him."

"Perhaps I could," she interrupted, "but it isn't a question of persuasion. Mr. Bigelow, I just want you to believe that I know that Dr. Metcalf did not kill Mr. McKibben."

Tony opened a box filled with cigarettes which stood on his desk, but she shook her head. He got out his pipe, loaded it, lit it, and took three or four contemplative puffs.

"I've been curious about Metcalf," he said. "I have heard his methods referred to as unorthodox."

"Of course they were unorthodox," she retorted. "What scientist ever accomplished anything unless he invented methods of his own?"

"That's true," Tony nodded. "You think he could really cure people or mental obsessions?"

"I know he could. I have seen people's lives made over. Of course," she went on, "there are a lot of women who go to a psychiatrist merely because they want to talk about—themselves, you know, to some man. Dr. Metcalf never wasted time on them. He told them the truth about themselves and sent them away."

"I was talking to one just yesterday," Tony said.

"That would be like him. He never took a case unless there was something about it which interested him, and also unless he thought he could bring about an improvement."

"How long have you known him?"

"Nearly four years."

"Tell me some thing about yourself, Miss Scott."

"There isn't anything to tell," she answered shortly. "My father is dead. I live with my mother."

"You admired Dr. Metcalf, evidently."

"Of course I did. Anybody would who knew him. I was proud of the fact that he trusted me. He had absolutely no reason for suicide, Mr. Bigelow," she went on. "And I would be willing to swear that he never had a pistol. He had a horror of firearms. He would never kill anything."

"His boy said something of the sort," Tony agreed. "Why didn't you say all this when the police questioned you Friday?"

"I will tell you why," she said earnestly. "I did not say that, nor any of the other things I am telling you because I want the man who murdered him and who murdered John McKibben to think the case is really closed. I want him to feel safe. Then he may betray himself."

"You speak as though you know who he is."

"Yes, I think he is," Tony agreed. "As I understand it, you believe that he not only murdered McKibben and Metcalf, but also that it was he who was working with McKibben in that blackmail racket."

"I am sure of it."

"You are probably right. You know, of course, that Dr. Metcalf made dictograph records of some of the things his patients told him?"

"Of course. Psychiatrists often do that."

"There's some difference of opinion as to whether it is an ethical procedure," Tony pointed out. "You must realize, Miss Scott, that some of these records would be the best possible basis for blackmail."

"In the hands of an unscrupulous person, perhaps," she conceded.

Visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Zeppernick Saturday were Mr. and Mrs. Harmon Zeppernick of Salem.

"I see that now. And it's also pretty evident that he didn't know about McKibben having that record until I told him."

"Of course he didn't."

"He would have known," Tony added severely, "if you had told him about Stuyvesant Bradford's visit to the office Monday afternoon."

"But I did tell him, as soon as he came in. Mr. Bradford said nothing about any record. He was drunk and excited and hardly knew what he was saying and waved a riding crop in the air."

"And then you bounced him out," interrupted Tony. "He told me."

"Bounced" is hardly the word," she protested. "It wasn't so hard to get rid of him. After all, he's a gentleman."

"That's quite a compliment," said the columnist smiling. "I shall have to tell him. He'll like it."

"At any rate," Miss Scott said, "I hadn't the slightest idea what his real complaint was."

"But Bradford also told you that he was going to get Jack McKibben at Max's that night."

"Yes, he told me that."

"And you told Metcalf that too?"

"Yes."

NOTICE PLEASE

To the Voters of Columbiana County!

I have received numerous communications from all sections of the county relative to my not having visited the voters and asking for their support at the coming election.

The responsibilities of the office at this time are such that I feel that I would be neglecting the office to do so, therefore, it is my belief that I should ask the electors through the newspapers of the county for their support and influence at the May election.

Sheriff, Columbiana County

WACS' NAPLES ABODE IS RUINED BY BOMB

(By Associated Press)

NAPLES, April 25.—There were nine homeless WACS in Naples today, a little shaken after a bombing destroyed the apartment which served as their billet, but in good spirits.

The bomb landed in the midst of buildings housing a WAC unit attached to the airforce service command and sliced off the end of one of the structures but none of the WACS was injured.

Sgt. Beatrice White of Middletown, Conn., was working in a building a half-mile or so away when she heard a bomb explode—the first she had ever heard.

"I knew it had hit somewhere and when I came home a half hour later I found it was our own apartment," she said. "I lost all my clothes except those I had on and all my snapshots."

COPE FOR PROBATE JUDGE

The voters of Columbiana County are entitled to know the manner in which a public office is conducted as well as the policies of all candidates for such office.

The duties of the Probate Judge are mainly performed IN HIS OFFICE AT THE COURT HOUSE in administering the affairs of his probate and juvenile courts.

The habit and record of Judge Hammond in making frequent trips to Columbus and elsewhere is well known in Lisbon, and the following is a correct list of his ATTENDANCE AT THE COURT HOUSE during a normal year, excepting the month of July.

JANUARY	24 WORKING DAYS—ABSENT	6 DAYS
FEBRUARY	22 WORKING DAYS—ABSENT	9 DAYS
MARCH	27 WORKING DAYS—ABSENT	19 DAYS
APRIL	26 WORKING DAYS—ABSENT	16 DAYS
MAY	25 WORKING DAYS—ABSENT	13 DAYS
JUNE	26 WORKING DAYS—ABSENT	5 DAYS
JULY	(No figures available for this month)
AUGUST	26 WORKING DAYS—ABSENT	13½ DAYS
SEPTEMBER	25 WORKING DAYS—ABSENT	11 DAYS
OCTOBER	25 WORKING DAYS—ABSENT	13 DAYS
NOVEMBER	24 WORKING DAYS—ABSENT	5 DAYS
DECEMBER	26 WORKING DAYS—ABSENT	2 DAYS
276 WORKING DAYS—ABSENT		112½ DAYS

The above indicates that he was ABSENT 112½ DAYS out of 276 WORKING DAYS IN THE YEAR 1943.

He was ABSENT in MARCH, APRIL and MAY while LOBBYING IN COLMBUS for a JUDGES' PENSION BILL which was rejected by the legislature.

JUDGE HAMMOND WILL SUBMIT THIS PENSION BILL TO THE COMING GENERAL ASSEMBLY, IF RE-NOMINATED.

Judge Hammond, during the THREE TERMS COVERING 12 YEARS HE HAS OCCUPIED THIS OFFICE, has been ABSENT from his office MORE OFTEN than any other official in the court house.

My position and statement to the voters:

- I believe that the Probate Judge should be in his office available for those who have business with the court.
- I believe that the TAXPAYERS should NOT BE CHARGED with the EXPENSE of PROVIDING A JUDGES' PENSION.

I submit the above with my qualification as a practicing attorney for the consideration of the voters, believing that Columbiana County will benefit by a change in the office of Probate Judge.

Flashes Of Life

(By Associated Press)

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, April 25. — Regular church attendance for five years, no drinking and 10 per cent of all earnings invested in War bonds—that's the sentence which a judge here imposed on James Robert Poole, who had pleaded guilty to a burglary charge.

COLUMBUS—The boys' nutrition class of Upper Arlington High school climaxed weeks of cooking their own lunches by entertaining girl friends and school officials at a fried chicken dinner.

The boys prepared everything from creamed peas in patty shells to cookies for the ice cream—and then washed the dishes while their feminine guests played bridge.

TOLEDO — Rev. Floyd McClure taught his 18-month-old son how to lock the doors of an automobile. The little boy learned quickly. After they had stopped at a baker, he locked the car doors from the inside at bread, jelly rolls, and cake while his father watched helplessly from the outside.

GAHANNA — The back porch was stolen off his house, George Baker reported to the sheriff's office here recently, and old, shabby living-room furniture substituted for his own.

LIMA — Servicemen passing through the canteen here Easter weekend helped alleviate the egg surplus by eating 4,000 of them in the three-day period.

TOLEDO — Silver cups cover a table at the home of Mr. and Mrs. El. Cannon here. They and their two teen-age daughters have won 102 trophies and awards for skill in table tennis. The Cannon creed: "Be nothing but a champion."

MADISONVILLE — The parents of Staff Sgt. John J. Hurley were excited recently to hear over the radio a description of their son's being awarded the Air medal. About an hour later their furloughed son walked into the house. He had come from New Guinea.

LORAIN — Being an expert paint-mixer has its disadvantages, a local decorator discovered recently, as he slaved in the garage trying to mix paints the exact shade of his wife's nightgown.

YOUNGSTOWN—An irate male, recently given a medical discharge after serving in North Africa, wrote to a local paper: "..... I tried to get a suit pressed within a couple of hours since I had an important engagement. Did the tailor explain that he was rushed and so behind in his work that he couldn't possibly do it or say he was sorry or refer me to another? No. He yelled, 'Hey, Abe, look, the guy don't know there's a war on!'"

Baseball Is Given Vote Of Confidence During Opening Week

250,989 Attendance Tops Last Year's Figure By 35,000 And Future Outlook Is Promising

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

Baseball moguls waded out to the ball parks today with some spare change jingling in their side pockets because 250,989 customers gave the national game a vote of confidence in the first week of the new season.

It's still too early to draw any line on what to expect when the hot weather and night games come along, but there's enough business in the house to top the 1943 opening week turnout by 35,000 paid.

The fans have not broken down any gates in get into the parks and the attendance is only slightly better than an average peace-time haul for an opening day, but the future outlook is promising.

Consider that rain washed away the lucrative Sunday dates in the Yankee stadium, Philadelphia, Brooklyn and Pittsburgh. Conservative estimates charge the dreary Sabbath weather with the loss of 60,000 admissions.

Although figures are a little out of line because they include the opening day crowds, the attendance has been over 2,500 a game. Anything resembling this average throughout the season would surpass last year's total for both leagues of 7,714,838.

Cincinnati's opening day crowd of 30,154 is responsible for boosting the National league total to 152,620 as compared to 127,338 for the first seven days in 1943. The American figures for 1944 are 134,090 as contrasted to 123,051 a year ago.

While the statisticians were at work on opening week figures yesterday, the athletes enjoyed a day of rest as the only game scheduled, Cincinnati at Pittsburgh in the National, was called off.

With a shift of scenery the unbeaten New York Giants and St. Louis Cardinals go back to work today. Mel Ott's men at Philadelphia and the Cardinals in Cincinnati. Brooklyn at Boston and Chicago at Pittsburgh complete the National calendar.

Those St. Louis Browns keep their win streak intact for at least another day as they are not scheduled, but Philadelphia invades New York, Boston goes to Washington and Detroit visits Chicago for the first time in a three-game American league chart.

BRICKER

er did not comment directly on the claim of Roy D. Moore, his campaign manager, that the Bricker camp would go into the June convention with 257 delegates.

Sees Southern Support

The governor said, however, he expected to have some representation in the southern delegations. He said he also had been assured of some votes from New England, an area which Moore had eliminated in his calculations as being unlikely to produce any large number of delegates for the governor.

Bricker reiterated at the press conference previously expressed views in opposition to the federal war ballot for servicemen. He said the Ohio legislature meeting in special session tomorrow, would enact a new state ballot law extending the time in which soldiers can vote and making it easier for them to obtain and return ballots.

Criticizing the New Deal's administration of home front affairs, the governor said the election might be vitally affected by the progress of the proposed European invasion. He said he had found in the country a "general feeling that the war ought to be moved on." He said there was general confidence in military leaders but added that "any bad turn in the war or loss of confidence in the administration" would reflect against the Democrats in November.

Moore coupled his prediction with a forecast that there would be no first ballot nomination at the June convention.

In the first claim of this nature made by the Bricker camp, Moore told a reporter a survey of prospects in the midwest and south indicated the Ohio governor could count on the backing of about one-fourth of the 1,059 delegates.

With 530 votes needed to nominate, there has been much speculation among practical politicians that Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, who says he is not a candidate, might amass sufficient strength to win on the first convention count.

Pittsburgh Gives 'Commando' Kelly A Hero's Welcome

(By Associated Press)

PITTSBURGH, April 25.—Shawanda street and "Mom" Kelly took "Commando" Kelly to their hearts today.

Tech. Sgt. Charles Edward Kelly, back on furlough from his exploits in the Italian campaign which won for him the Congressional Medal of Honor, rested in the comforts of home after a wild demonstration of greeting that lasted late into the night.

The slight, shy, ruddy-faced hero, credited with eliminating 40 Nazis in one of this war's most sensational actions, dodged friends and admirers "just to catch up on some sleep and see my mom."

Police guarded the entrance to his unpretentious home in Pittsburgh's "Dutchtown" section while he did so.

Mayor Cornelius Scully met the fighting Irishman at his home and offered him and his family an expensive suite in a downtown hotel, but the "Commando" replied, very courteously:

"This is good enough for mom, and it's good enough for me." While hundreds cheered, Mrs. Irene Kelly, a widow, with her eight other sons, met the hero at the county airport upon his arrival, hours late, from Washington. Mrs. Kelly choked back tears as she embraced her boy.

The greeting for the soldier was so lusty that in the crush at the airport Mrs. Kelly's new veiled, orchid hat was knocked from her head, and Kelly himself was nearly pushed off his feet as his eight brothers rushed down a ramp to meet him.

"Where do you want to go, Charley?" someone yelled.

"Home," yelled the "Commando."

U. S. BOMBERS

Munich, Nazi party birthplace, is the fourth largest city in Germany (pop. 828,000) and a prime manufacturing and communications center.

Some 4,000 tons of bombs were rained on Nazi targets yesterday in the blows from the west and south.

U. S. mustangs, lightnings, and thunderbolts and RAF mustangs escorting the liberators and flying fortresses to Friedrichshafen and Munich sent down 66 enemy planes, and bomber gunners accounted for 37 more.

Twelve American bombers landed in Switzerland after the Friedrichshafen raid, and two others crashed in that neutral country, the Swiss announced. One was shot down by Swiss fighters when it failed to obey landing signals.

Company Stands Firm

CHICAGO, April 25.—Montgomery Ward and Co. stated today it "continue to observe the wages, hours and terms of employment" set forth in an expired contract with a CIO union, and asserted any seizure of the firm's property would be unconstitutional.

ALLIED FORCES

ing roads for transporting the supplies piling up on the beaches. If the Japanese in the Hollandia area planned a last-ditch fight in defense of the airfield, it remained to be developed against Americans pinching from the two bays along a 34-mile connecting road.

Humboldt bay forces, in addition to occupying Hollandia village, took the village of Pim four miles to the south, within eight miles of the Tami airfield in the Lake Sentani area. The main Hollandia field is 17 miles west, the Cyclops field 11 miles west and slightly north.

Maintain Bombings

Whether others of the 60,000 Nipponese soldiers between Hollandia and bypassed Wewak and Madang would figure in the fighting remained to be seen but headquarters reported today a supporting 333-ton bomber and attack planes. Wewak is a Japanese air base 250 miles southeast of Hollandia.

To the northwest of Hollandia, Japanese air bases at Geelvink bay, from which planes could be sent against the invaders, apparently have been reinforced. Headquarters said today that Liberators had to fight off 30 interceptors, shooting down 14 from 14 to 17, while dropping 41 tons of explosives on airdromes there. The bombers had met no enemy air opposition in recent raids on that sector.

At Pearl Harbor, Adm. Chester W. Nimitz reviewed results attained by the first operations of his Central Pacific naval units in direct support of a MacArthur offensive.

He said 13 enemy aircraft were shot down in pre-invasion air combat by carrier planes hitting airfields at Hollandia, at Wake Island, 110 miles northwest of Hollandia, and at Sevar, 11 miles west of Wake. Twenty-one more were destroyed on the ground and 17 damaged. The other 37 accounted for were wrecked on the ground at Hollandia.

SERGT. HUTCHESON

From his frequent letters home relative have heard of his narrow escapes from serious injury and death in the flights over enemy territory. His plane has been badly shot up many times, once making the trip back to England from occupied Europe on two engines and once on only one engine, after the other two had gone out of commission.

Once, while flying at high altitude, his electrically-heated flying suit burned out and he was forced to change clothes in temperature more than 20 degrees below zero. The only ill effect suffered was a first-bitten chin.

Sergt. Hutcheson is credited with shooting down a German ME-109 Nazi fighter plane, during a raid on Berlin on March 6. It was after this flight that he received the DFC.

He trained at Jefferson Barracks, Mo., Gulfport, Miss., Inglewood, Calif., and took gunnery instruction at Tyndall field, Panama City, Fla., and advanced combat training in Pyote and Dalhart, Texas.

Work or Be Drafted, Law for 4-Fs, Older Men Is Advocated

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, April 25.—Advocating a new work-or-be-drafted law that would cover 4-F's and men up to 45 who refuse to take essential jobs, Sen. Brewster (R-Me.) today declared Congress must move promptly to halt an "alarming" labor turnover in industry.

Brewster joined with Sen. Bailey (D-NC) in sponsoring a bill which would:

1. "Freeze" men between 18 and 45 in essential work by requiring them to get local draft board approval before taking other jobs. If they shifted without draft board approval, they would be subject to immediate induction.

2. Empower Selective Service to conscript 4-F's or any other registrants up to age 45 for war-essential jobs whenever a government manpower committee found manpower needs could be filled in no other way.

Brewster said in a statement the plan would halt labor hoarding and "go a long way" toward forcing workers out of non-essential jobs and into war-supporting industries. The labor "freeze" feature would apply to industry the principle previously adopted by congress to keep necessary workers on the farms, he added.

Under the present law, farm workers become subject to induction if they take other employment and Brewster said this provision had been effective in keeping 1,700,000 agricultural workers on the farm.

Apparently referring to previous organized labor opposition to conscription of workers, Brewster said "labor should not object to a plan that will enable unions to retain many of their members who otherwise would be shifting around."

Nab Four Warren Girls Driving Stolen Auto

WEST MEMPHIS, Ark., April 25.—Four teen-aged girls who said they lived in Warren, O., were being held today on a federal charge of transporting a stolen automobile to Arkansas.

The four gave their names as Sandra Bassick, Marjorie Jean Decker and Charlotte Ann Puck, all 19, and Helen Vlahogonis, 16. Miss Vlahogonis pleaded innocent when arraigned at Little Rock yesterday and was ordered held under $1,000 bond. The other three were taken to Jonesboro for a hearing.

FBI agents said the girls told them the car was given to them in Cincinnati, O., by a man who had driven them there from Warren. They said they had started to Texas where Miss Vlahogonis has relatives.

Frank B. Noves continues as honorary president, and Kent Cooper continues as executive director and general manager.

waffe "with many of its plane production factories underground, will not be knocked out," and is "planning a second front of its own—adding reserves to use only when the curtain raises."

Another broadcast said preparations had been made to counter Allied parachute landings, and that the Germans would "meet surprise with surprise."

Here in England, Lt. Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, Canadian commander-in-chief, said the Canadian army was finished with its pre-invasion training and eager to settle the debt of Dieppe.

German newspapers reaching neutral Madrid warned "the Anglo-American invasion probably will have a different result than at Dieppe," and "the greatest battle in the history of the world will take place along the Atlantic."

Available information in Madrid indicated this might be the distribution of German forces: Six divisions in Norway, 12 in Finland, 12 in the Balkans, 175 in Russia, 25 in Italy, five along the Mediterranean coast and 30 posted on the Atlantic wall with a mobile reserve of 60 divisions at strategic points in France, Germany, and central Europe.

Denmark To Sweden Travel Is Halted

(By Associated Press)

STOCKHOLM, April 25.—Denmark was virtually isolated from Sweden today in a curious, unexplained German move linked possibly with invasion.

Most quarters, however, were inclined to regard the disruption of communications as simply a German counter-offensive to the Allied war of nerves which reached new intensity with the recent British restriction on diplomats, and the latest move in London virtually forbidding travel.

Among the flurry of rumors prompted by Denmark's isolation was the story the Germans were encountering some internal ties in Denmark. Free Danish circles had no confirmation.

Salient facts of the situation were these:
Germans, Finns and Norwegians were forbidden to travel to Denmark from Sweden by ferry.

Swedes were not directly forbidden but state railways refused to sell tickets to Denmark.

Telephone service between Sweden and Denmark has been shut down completely since last night except for official calls which still are coming through from Copenhagen.

Similar isolation developed Aug. 29, 1943, when the Germans took over control of all Denmark.

Ohioan Is Decorated

First Lieut. John E. Richey, Jr., of Steubenville was awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross recently for combat missions against Germany, according to a release from the Army Eighth air force today.

Lieut. Richey was one of six Ohioans to receive the award, the release stated.

is holding a reserve for action when the invasion starts, and there's no reason to doubt that. As this column has pointed out previously, anxiety to preserve a reserve in the big day undoubtedly accounts in part for the comparatively high resistance being offered by Nazi fighter planes to the bombings.

Latest figures of German arm strength, as available in Madrid today, give the Germans a possible total of 319 divisions all told. It's certain that many of these divisions aren't up to strength, and we can only guess that they may represent some 3,500,000 to 3,750,000 men. Ninety-six divisions—perhaps some thing over a million troops—are available to meet the invasion in western Europe.

That's a lot of men, but too few to handle the onslaught which Hitler will have to meet simultaneously on the eastern and western fronts. The Russians are said to be massing troops for offensives to synchronize with the invasion in the west.

At present there are 35 main Red Cross blood plasma donor center and 63 mobile blood-collecting unit in the United States.
